

CORN BORER NOW SPREADING WEST

Fight to Protect Corn Belt From Advance of Pest to Be Concentrated in Ohio.

PEST DOES HARM IN CANADA

Farmers Urged to Cut Cornstalks Close to Ground as Possible to Destroy Winter Home of Insect—Fall Plowing Helps.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The fight to protect the corn belt against the advance of the European corn borer is now to be concentrated in Ohio, where, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, infestations of the pest have been found along the entire southern shore of Lake Erie, over a strip varying from six to twelve miles in width and extending to within six miles of the Indiana border. It is at the western end of the lake that the borer also threatens a descent upon the Detroit river to the need for the pest is preparing to reduce its efforts against the pest in other places and in cooperation with the Ohio authorities concentrate them in Ohio.

Heavy Infestation in Ontario.
For some months the Canadian authorities have been combating the pest on the northern shore of the lake, where it has gained a strong foothold, practically devastating entire cornfields in the vicinity of St. Thomas. A three-day heavy wind at the period when the moths were flying is believed to have blown some of them across the lake into Ohio.

Every possible effort, it is said, will be made to hold down the infestations on the Ohio and Pennsylvania side of the lake. Farmers will be urged to cut their cornstalks as close to the ground as possible, and the insects, which winter home in the stalks. For this reason, too, fall plowing is recommended. The Ohio authorities, it is said, are fully alive to the need for checking the spread of the pest, and are co-operating with the department and conducting work of their own toward this end.

Floating Cornstalks a Source of Danger.
This is the first instance known in which the corn borer was carried over great distances by wind. It has been known, though, to travel by water in floating cornstalks, and in this manner has made its way to Canada. This is one ominous feature of the presence of the borer in Ohio, it is said. At present the infestations are in a strip that drains into Lake Erie, and floating stalks are not likely to do much harm. However, the divide where the drainage of the Ohio river basin is only a few miles south of the infested area. Once over this watershed, it is said, there is no telling where the pest may be carried. It is thought, therefore, that the pest may be carried in that event might be carried over to places far down the Mississippi river.

Top center—a female moth with cluster of eggs on a section of corn leaf, on a considerably larger scale. Top right—mature tassel showing typical injuries by caterpillar. (The broken tassel stem is often the most noticeable evidence of the presence of the insect during the early summer months.) Center—external and internal views of ears of sweet corn. Lower half of the plate—snap beans, beets, and celery attacked by the borer, cornstalk containing caterpillars, corn stubbles cut away to show how the caterpillars hide themselves in the fall, winter, and early spring months, "smartweed," which is a favorite food of the "barley" grass, which in Massachusetts is often heavily infested, and "cockle-bur" plant, a weed that often serves as a breeding place for the pest.

The European corn borer has been known in this country only a few years. It is well known in northern Ohio, where it does great damage to corn, especially in Austria. It is supposed to have come to this country and to Canada in importations of broom corn from Europe, and at present several large areas in New England and New York are under Federal quarantine to prevent its further spread. Its presence in Ohio is one of the most important developments since it entered this country.

Record of Business.
A few minutes given by the grower or small farmer at a definite time each day will keep a record of his business, and with accurate figures at the end of the season he can see at a glance where he is either making or losing money.

Insanitary Vermin.
Vermis are insanitary. They contaminate food products and, when contaminated food products are eaten, they produce disease.

Purebred Ram Pays Best.
Purchase a purebred ram if possible, as blood will count and marked results will be seen in the quality of lambs. Bred character should be considered as it is very important, and for many occasions. Prices are relatively low and it pays to buy the best.

Administering D-p.
One kind of medicine will not cure all animal diseases. Use judgment, even though you enjoy administering D-p.

SUGGESTIONS TO AID FARM TIMBER OWNERS

Selling of Product Calls for Good Business Methods.

Benefit by Experience of Neighbors and Investigate Local Requirements and Prices—Advertise and Secure Competition.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Based upon methods used by wood-lot owners that have been successful in marketing their products, the forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture offers the following 10 suggestions for aiding owners who have timber on the farm for sale:

1. Get prices for various wood products from as many sawmills and other wood-using plants as possible. Before selling, consult neighbors who have sold timber and benefit from their experience.

2. Investigate local timber requirements and prices. Your products may be worth more locally because transportation is saved.

3. Advertise in papers and otherwise secure outside competition. Get a reliable estimate of the amount and value of the timber before selling.

4. Market the higher grades of timber and use the cheaper for farm purposes. Remember that standing timber can wait over a period of low prices without rapid deterioration.

5. Use a written agreement in selling timber, especially if the cutting is done by the purchaser. Be sure that you are selling to responsible purchasers.

6. Get a reliable estimate of the amount and value of the timber before selling. Remember that standing timber can wait over a period of low prices without rapid deterioration.

More Calls Are Made for Suits

It is hard to pry the American woman loose from her friend, the tailored suit. It is one of her most becoming assets. She likes it, she feels well dressed when she wears it, and here is the figure that displays it to the very best advantage. And, observes a fashion authority, when the calendar says that autumn is here, the suit looms the first noticeable change in dress expression.

A prominent maker of suits—a man who has devoted the whole of his life to the study of this one by-path in women's wear—said that he had had just as many, if not more, calls for suits this season as he had had any season in the past. This statement was made in the face of the fact that autumn is here, the suit looms the first noticeable change in dress expression. Now this tailor believes that the suit can with the individual proportions of the figure. Then, some of these three-quarter tailored coats are slit at the sides from the bottom, so that the ends have a trifle of "give" to them, not being keyed to the line of the figure. This was made with bindings of its own material, which material was broadcloth, by the way, and these were cut almost an inch in width. The color of the suit was a dusty taupe and the stitched edges made a good-looking finish.

Have Low-Cut Revers.
Most of these strictly tailored suits have low-cut revers, so that the closings of the coat come just above the waistline. This is a new feature in French fashions, the latter being the touch which the suit remains as nothing worthy of notice.

As for materials in the tailored suits, well, there are tweils and serges that are used for a wide variety of purposes in this connection, and there are some soft, fine drevyts and wool velours. Suits with more or less of trimming come to the fore, and these are some of the new features of the season. Most of these, this season, are made with the long-sleeved and with slightly flared effects at the waistline. Then the embroidery is used for a wide variety of purposes in this connection, and there are some soft, fine drevyts and wool velours.
